

Organizations and Conferences IDD Should Monitor

Designers micro-collaborating on an ILO need to hold themselves to high standards of professionalism and expertise, and, when called for, need to be able to convince instructor-experts to change their deep-seated behaviors. These organizations, websites, and conferences can help the IDD team maintain and expand on their expertise in the development of highly interactive learning objects.

- The eLearning Guild: www.eLearningguild.com
  - mLearnCon, DevLearn, Learning Solutions Conferences:
  - Online Webinars
- ASTD (The American Society for Training & Development): www.astd.org
- AECT (Association for Educational Communications and Technology): <http://www.aect.org>
- Educause: <http://www.educause.edu>
- UPCEA (University Professional & Continuing Education Association): <http://www.upcea.edu>
- Quality Matters: <http://www.qmprogram.org>
- WCET (WICHE Cooperative for Educational Technologies): <http://wcet.wiche.edu>
- AACE (Association for the Advancement of Computing in Education): <http://www.aace.org>
  - ED-MEDIA conference: <http://www.aace.org/conf/edmedia/>
- HighEdWeb (Higher Education Web Professionals): <http://www.highedweb.org/conferences>
- NUTN (National University Technology Network): <http://www.nutn.org>
- SALT(Society for Applied Learning Technology): <http://www.salt.org>
- Games+Learning+Society: <http://www.gameslearningsociety.org>
- ISTE (International Society for Technology in Education): <http://www.iste.org>
- NMC (New Media Consortium): <http://www.nmc.org>
- Sloan Consortium: <http://sloanconsortium.org>
- USDLA (The United States Distance Learning Association): <http://www.usdla.org>